What's Your Why?

Before you receive your Writer's Toolbox and begin the journey of writing a family history story you must have a clear end game in mind. It's essential to be specific about what you are hoping to accomplish. Answer these three questions to help yourself understand your why. Refer to it throughout this process to remind yourself of your goal and to keep on track.

Why do I want to write my Family History Stories?

Who is my audience? Who do I want to read this story?

What do I want to accomplish through crafting these stories? What is my end game?
