Mental Health Policy

Patricia Rich (hereafter referred to as Patricia) is a licensed mental health professional in the state of Pennsylvania. However, Patricia only provides coaching, consultation and/or training (hereafter referred to as CC&/orT) services to clients of Patricia Rich Consulting, LLC. CC&/orT is not a substitute or alternative for mental health counseling, psychoanalysis or examination, or other mental health services. Do not delay diagnosis or treatment. Do not postpone appointments, go without or adjust medications, or otherwise rely on CC&/orT as a substitute or alternative for mental health care.

In the event that Patricia deems, in her sole discretion, that CC&/orT is not appropriate for you, she will notify you of the termination of the CC&/orT relationship. Patricia is unable to provide therapy services to you.

As a licensed mental health professional, Patricia will provide certain therapy-style documents to you at the start of the CC&/orT relationship, although therapy will not be provided. These documents are intended to explain how certain aspects of a mental health setting may carry over to the CC&/orT relationship.

For example, while CC&/orT is not subject to any privilege, Patricia does strive to keep communications confidential. However, there are certain instances, usually pertaining to self-harm or harm to others, that Patricia will abide by mandatory reporting rules typical of mental health settings.

Patricia does not provide letters for ongoing court cases or other purposes, and services provided are not billable or reimbursable by health insurance.
